

National Nursing Week 2023

Message from Jag Tak, LPN Council President and NNPBC Board Member

Hello, and Happy National Nursing Week!

This year for National Nursing Week we celebrate with the theme, 'Our Nurses, Our Future.' This theme highlights the collaborative nature of our profession, and the important role that nurses will play in shaping the future of health in our province.

As an LPN and educator, I am always proud to work alongside nurse educators, amazing LPNs, and other nursing colleagues, as well the students who so beautifully represent the future of our profession.

When I think of LPNs, I think about the skilled, innovative, evidence-driven, and passionate nurses and leaders who play an essential role in BC's health care system. LPNs work across health settings in direct care, public health, research, policy, and education, and as such, have a profound knowledge and understanding of the health system and what it needs to develop in the future.

It is this understanding paired with LPN expertise that we will continue to transform health care in this province and create a future of care that protects our public system and respects the unique and important contributions of ALL of BC's nursing professionals.

I am proud to be an LPN and proud to call you my colleagues. I hope you have a happy National Nursing Week!

Sincerely,

Jag Tak
LPN Council President and NNPBC Board Member