

Community Health Nurse in Nunavut

About the role:

With a population of over 37,000 living in over 20 community regions, the residents of Nunavut receive their healthcare through regional health centres and homecare visits. Calian's partnership with the Government of Nunavut allows us to offer short- and long-term roles to qualified Registered Nurses who are interested in traveling to the region for employment.

Community Health Nurses (RNs) provide wide ranging nursing services within outpost nursing stations, often without a Physician on site. The role involves supporting well clinics, running chronic health programs, responding to urgent care concerns, and providing health education and promotion within the communities.

Free accommodations are provided along with a northern living allowance. Within BC, free flights are provided from Vancouver and Kelowna. Generally, assignments offer 37.5 hours of regular work per week, along with additional requirements to be on stand by and take call backs.

Multiple assignments are available throughout the year. Minimum length of assignments are 4 weeks long but can be longer depending on need and availability.

These roles are well suited to Registered Nurses who are experienced working in remote or rural communities where perhaps you worked with an expanded scope of practice. If you are seeking new adventure or are looking to provide care to underserved regions these opportunities would be an ideal fit for you.

The qualifications:

- 1 year of experience working in a remote or isolated setting, or 2 years of experience in ER, ICU or Community Clinic settings
- Licensed with the RNANTNU
- CPR
- ACLS
- EPICC or TNCC or BTLS
- ENPC or PALS
- NRP
- ALARM or ESW or FHS
- Vulnerable Sector Check
